

REV. DR. ABBOTT'S SON
IN PATRICK JURY BOX.

Two Talesmen Rebuked by Recorder Goff—Real Trial Will Undoubtedly Be Begun To-Morrow—Patrick's Brother-in-Law Ready to Spend a Million in His Defense.

JURORS CHOSEN IN PATRICK TRIAL.

No. 1—JAMES MACHELL, No. 313 West One Hundred and Fourth street, a diamond merchant at No. 52 Park place, foreman.

No. 2—FRANK P. BLUMBERG, of No. 40 East Twenty-sixth street, secretary of the American School Furniture Company, No. 111 Fifth avenue, and former prosecuting attorney in Columbia County, Pa.

No. 3—GEORGE H. CARPENTER, of No. 118 East Fifty-fifth street, general manager of the Monarch Fire Appliance Company.

No. 4—RICHARD MURPHY, floor inspector, of No. 120 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street.

No. 5—HENRY A. MASON, manufacturer, residence No. 4 West One Hundred and Fortieth street.

No. 6—JOHN D. CAMPBELL, contractor's superintendent, of No. 212 East Forty-ninth street.

No. 7—HENRY GUELMAN, a retired real estate dealer, of 1111 Bridge road.

No. 8—LAWRENCE S. ABBOTT, editor and publisher of Outlook, of No. 128 West Fifty-ninth street.

No. 9—EDWARD S. PRINGLE, a bookkeeper and cashier, of No. 809 St. Nicholas avenue.

Only one additional juror was secured at the morning session of the Patrick murder trial. He is John D. Campbell, a contractor's superintendent of No. 212 East Forty-ninth street. He took seat No. 6.

Juror No. 7 was quickly selected. He proved to be Henry Gudelman, a retired real estate dealer, of High-bridge road.

Lawrence S. Abbott, a son of Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, was chosen as Juror No. 8. He is editor of Outlook, and resides at No. 128 West Fifty-ninth street.

The ninth juror was chosen late this afternoon. He is Edward S. Pringle, a bookkeeper, of No. 809 St. Nicholas avenue.

John T. Milliken, the millionaire grain dealer of St. Louis, a brother-in-law of Albert T. Patrick, will spend a million dollars, if necessary, to free the accused murderer of William Marsh Rice.

Patrick's lawyers have been notified by Mr. Milliken that he is willing to contribute that vast sum to prove the innocence of his brother-in-law.

Mr. Milliken was in this city Saturday and called on Mr. Moore, of Patrick's counsel, and said: "You go ahead, Mr. Moore, and call upon me for whatever money you require. I will spend a million dollars to prove Patrick's innocence."

Charles Lippe and Thomas B. Schaffer, the first two talesmen called this morning, were stricken from the roll of special jurors by Recorder Goff and warned that they might be punished for perjury.

They swore before the Commissioner of Jurors that they were not opposed to capital punishment and swore this morning that they had such scruples.

Charles Lippe and Thomas B. Schaffer, the first two talesmen called, had unpleasant experiences.

Both said they had conscientious scruples against the death penalty. "Strike these names off the roll of special jurors," said Recorder Goff. "Some of you men are likely to be indicted for perjury one of these days."

Many Excused.

Benjamin G. Mitchell, Third Vice-President of the Central Trust Company; Solomon B. Davaea, a merchant at No. 22 East Fourteenth street; James H. Burnside, an insurance agent, of No. 17 West Seventy-fifth street; William H. Noelker, a decorator, of No. 302 Amsterdam avenue; Arthur S. Levy, a real estate dealer; William E. Balch, a salesman; Bushrod R. Bayn, a salesman, of 20 West Fifty-ninth street; Frank J. Shalek, a meat broker; Frank Givall, of No. 215 Seventh avenue, were excused.

Walter C. Brush, a cigar dealer, of No. 215 Seventh avenue, was excused.

CANNOT OPEN DADY'S SAFE.

Reiss and Friends Are Refused a Search Warrant.

Magistrate Higginbotham refused this afternoon to issue a search warrant against Michael J. Dady's safe.

All the talk about a contract between Sheriff Guden and Dady in which it is alleged the Sheriff agreed to turn over all receipts of his office over $10,000 a year, was simply a ruse to "gold-brick" Jacob Worth into giving Guden his support, so Guden testified in the Lee Avenue Court, Brooklyn, today at the continued hearing of the scandal.

"I first met Mr. Reiss at the theatre after my nomination," Guden said. "Mr. Sanford and Mr. Doremus were also there. After leaving the theatre Mr. Reiss and I went downtown. We talked over the situation all the time. I told him I thought Mr. Atterbury was sore and that the Kissel faction might be opposed, also Jacob Worth. Reiss then said to me: 'How do you stand with Doremus?' I told him I was next."

"He told me that he understood Doremus wanted Sparks appointed Sheriff's counsel. He said he thought Sparks was too light for the place, and the next day Reiss met me at his office and said: 'We've got to sell the old man a gold brick. Tell him that you have signed a contract with Dady to give him all over $10,000 a year and the patronage of the office.' I said that I didn't want to do anything against Dady because he got me my nomination. The subject was dropped at that point."

"Prior to election was any agreement given you to Dady?"

"No agreement of any kind," was the Sheriff's direct and simple answer.

"The agreement originated in Reiss's head as a result of what he told me I must do to obtain Worth's support."

"Did you have any talk with Mr. Dady before he went to Havana?"

"No," Reiss said. "I told him I would be bothered about appointments and that I had better wait until he came back. I agreed to do so."

Mr. Guden said that Atterbury in an effort to get recognition from him had "bought" him so far as to tell him that he might make a good nomination for Governor. The Sheriff said:

"On another occasion Mr. Reiss said to me that he had $1,000 raised for me and that he would make appointments and that Atterbury would give $1,000 more for two more years. I said to Mr. Reiss and those with him:

"Gentlemen, this comes so mighty near to me that I don't know the difference after which I went home."

"My whole object in not denying the agreement was that I thought by making them believe I had broken with Dady I could get the support of anti-Dady elements and paper money."

"On cross-examination he was asked: 'Did Mr. Dady name your appointment?' When he came back from Havana."

"No," he said. "I went before the Patronage Committee of the Executive Committee of the Republican party. I named a number of my subordinates myself persons of the other hand that Mr. Guden suggested the names of others. I named about eight and the Patronage Committee then examined them. I think also tried to prevent a fight against Dady, who is my leader. If he said not to appoint a man that named, I did not choose."

Warrant Is Refused.

Magistrate Higginbotham refused to grant the search warrant. He gave the following decision:

"I refuse to grant the search warrant, and do so because I do not believe that an agreement of the character which the testimony of Mr. Reiss and Mr. Kissel and Mr. Atterbury and Mr. Sparks would seem to show that Mr. Guden admitted he had signed is now in Mr. Dady's safe or any other known place."

"And I do not want to be understood as deciding upon the one hand that there ever was such an agreement or on the other hand that Mr. Guden did or did not admit that he had signed such an agreement."

Lawyer Sharn upon hearing the decision said he would lay the case before the Governor at once.

He would ask the Governor, he said, to remove him, and that a certified copy of the testimony would be sent to the Governor.

RISKED LIFE TO SAVE BIRD

Dr. George Henriquez Groped Through Smoke After Sister's Parrot.

Plunging with fear that her pet parrot Luis and her valuable jewels would be lost, Miss Caroline Henriquez went nearly insane at a fire that completely destroyed the Henriquez home at No. 70 West End avenue this afternoon.

The total loss is estimated at more than $50,000.

Dr. Carlos L. Henriquez, the head of the house, with his brother and sister, was at home when the fire was discovered. Smoke curling up through the dining-room floor led to the discovery.

Mary Mullins, the waitress, ran into the hall and found that the door in front of the door leading into the street was already ablaze.

She screamed and the Henriquez family went into the street in panic. Then Miss Henriquez realized that her beloved parrot and her jewels were in the burning house. The parrot was a very uncommon bird from the United States of Colombia and was valued at $500.

The jewels were valued at $500. Among them was a pair of emerald earrings worth $500. The sister begged her brother to rescue the parrot, and he became so hysterical that she had to be restrained from running into the burning building.

Dr. George Henriquez in an effort to save the bird and the jewels dashed back and up to the third floor to his sister's room. So rapidly did the flames follow him that he found he could not escape by the stairway. He was obliged to drop the bird to save himself.

He groped to a third-story window and sprang out there shortly. The Henriquezes are Cubans. Both the brothers are graduates of Columbia and George is said to have played on the football team.

None of the furniture was saved. Included in the things lost were three tickets to Havana, the family intending to take a trip there shortly. The Henriquezes are Cubans. Both the brothers are graduates of Columbia and George is said to have played on the football team.

At the fire had been extinguished what was left of his room to find a $500 watch which was in his bureau drawer. He found three men in the room and one of them had broken open the drawer and had the watch in his hand.

The doctor relieved him of it with some embarrassment. He reported the fact when he came down, but he refused to tell who the men were. The impression he gave was that the rummagers were either firemen or policemen.

Engagement of the Young Inventor to Miss Josephine Holman Broken.

Signor Marconi, the inventor of the wireless telegraph system, announced to-day that his engagement to Miss Josephine Bowen Holman of Indianapolis, had been broken at the request of the young woman.

He sails for Europe to-morrow on the Philadelphia.

At Miss Holman's Request.

Signor Marconi was found in his apartment in the Hoffman House in the deepest dejection, sitting at a table opening letters and weeping.

"It is true, and I am very sorry to have to say," he said.

"Was the engagement broken off at Miss Holman's request?"

"Yes," said Miss Josephine's request. "Was it owing in any way to the delay in the completion of your experiments?"

"I can only say that it was at Miss Josephine's request. Any further explanation must come from her."

Mr. Marconi's eyes were moist and his whole air belied that he had received a severe blow.

Not a Hasty Decision.

"Was the decision reached hastily?"

"No," she requested it, and I took a couple of days to consider, and then I complied with her request."

"Have you any hopes of a reconciliation?"

"No," said Marconi. "I have no hopes of a reconciliation. I have no hopes of a reconciliation. I have no hopes of a reconciliation."

In answer to further questions, Signor Marconi said that he was hardly in a position to get married at the present time.

"I have to travel about so much," he said, "and then my experiments have been delayed a great deal because of the winds at Cape Cod and other reasons. If it was not for this my experiments would be much further advanced."

He added that he intended to sail to-morrow on the Philadelphia to be gone about six weeks.

"Will you hold any correspondence with Miss Holman while you are away?"

"No, I don't think so."

"Have you any hope that at a later date, when your experiments are further advanced, the engagement may be renewed?"

"I fear not," Signor Marconi answered very slowly and dejectedly.

Retreated Last April.

The engagement of Signor Marconi and Miss Holman was announced last April and they had planned to have been married before this. While the young inventor was still in Newfoundland, an announcement that he had succeeded in transmitting the letter "S" across the ocean by his wireless process, he telegraphed his sweetheart in Indianapolis to meet him here in New York.

She left immediately for this city and it was said in her home that she would be married shortly after her arrival here. The young woman herself refused to discuss plans for her wedding, but that did not keep the gossips from asserting that the young couple would be married and go to Europe together.

Miss Holman arrived here Dec. 21. She went to visit friends at No. 20 West Seventy-third street. Signor Marconi came down from Newfoundland and went to live at the Hoffman House.

Who Miss Holman Is.

Miss Holman is a graduate of Bryn Mawr, and is a niece of the late Congressman W. S. Holman, of Indiana, who was known as the "watch dog of the Treasury."

A reporter for The Evening World called at the house where Miss Holman and her mother are visiting this morning and was told that neither of them was at home.

Two days before the announcement of the breaking of the engagement was made, Miss Holman talked with her mother, and seemed greatly in love and there was then no hint of what has since happened.

The reporter asked her if she would not tell the date of her marriage and she replied:

"My mother and I realize that owing to Mr. Marconi's position, a certain amount of publicity in connection with us is unavoidable, but it is not pleasant. We really have made no plans as to the date of our marriage. The date has not been set. When it is set, of course, I will know."

"The engagement got out a little sooner than we expected through too much publicity and some of our friends in Indianapolis, and we don't want anything printed about the marriage until it is all settled as to just when it will take place."

Pugilist Protected His Head as He Fell—Will Soon Be All Right Again and Accident Will Not Prevent Him from Meeting Jeffries.

Robert Fitzsimmons, the ex-champion heavyweight pugilist, fell down a flight of stairs in the Orpheum Theatre, in Brooklyn, this morning. Fitzsimmons reached home this afternoon, and said he would soon be all right. The accident will not prevent him from meeting Jeffries. It was the pugilist's training that saved him, for as he fell his first thought was of his head and he protected it from injury.

Fitzsimmons called at the Orpheum this morning to see Percy Williams, owner of the theatre. It was then 9 o'clock and Williams had not arrived.

Fitzsimmons said that he wanted to talk to Williams about a fight with Jeffries. Williams backed Fitzsimmons in his last fight, and it is believed that the pugilist again wanted the backing of the theatrical man. The men are close personal friends.

Fell Down Marble Stairs.

Fitzsimmons sat in the office some minutes and then left, saying that he would run downtown and return later in the day. The door of Mr. Williams's office opens directly into the theatre. Between the office door and the main entrance to the theatre is an entrance to the rathskeller. A flight of twenty marble stairs leading down to the rathskeller.

The theatre was dark when Fitzsimmons left. Mr. Williams's office and instead of passing on to the main doorway he turned into the rathskeller entrance and plunged head first down the long flight of marble steps.

Some minutes later an attaché of the theatre heard groans coming from the rathskeller. He switched on the electric light and found Fitzsimmons at the bottom of the stairs, just recovering consciousness.

Fainted from the Pain.

The pugilist was helped to his feet and assisted back to Mr. Williams's office. There he sat down in a chair, and a moment later fell over in a dead faint.

Some one brought a glass of brandy and Fitzsimmons soon came around.

"My side," he complained, when he was able to speak. "It pains me very badly. I am afraid I have hurt my back."

Fitzsimmons got on his feet and tried to walk. He was unable to do so. The theatre attaché wanted to send for a physician, but the stubborn pugilist which was good for the pugilist in good stead in any a fight would not permit him to acknowledge that he was badly hurt.

Fitzsimmons arrived at his home in Bain Beach late this afternoon. He said that he was feeling all right except for a bad bruise on his right leg.

"That will be all right in a few days. It was a curious thing that while I was coming along in the dark in the theatre, that I thought to myself, 'I might fall down some stairs and dislocate myself so that I could not fight Jeffries.' I thought of nothing else and the first thing that flashed through my mind was that I must say my head. I drew my head between my knees and so protected it."

"My leg and side are very sore, but I will wait that out in a few days, and I will be back in my fighting. I don't want to fight Jeffries without a side kick, and I added two words, 'even yesterday who wanted to back me. I am not satisfied that their offer is a genuine one, and until I find out that they are on the whole, I shall not make any reply to Jeffries.'"

When Mr. H. O. Havemeyer's attention was called to these statements this afternoon, he said:

"Parts of most of words of truth in them. We have no intention of removing from Brooklyn or establishing a plant in Norfolk."

NOT TO MOVE REFINERIES.

H. O. Havemeyer Denies Story Sent from Norfolk.

A despatch from Norfolk, Va., today stated that H. O. Havemeyer of the American Sugar Refining Co. and his Secretary, P. Myrick, were in that city looking for a site for the Brooklyn refineries. The despatch further stated that Mr. Myrick was authorized by the statement that a ten-story building would be erected and that as soon as the plant was in operation a line of steamers would be run between Chesapeake and Norfolk.

"Mr. Havemeyer added two words, 'even yesterday who wanted to back me. I am not satisfied that their offer is a genuine one, and until I find out that they are on the whole, I shall not make any reply to Jeffries.'"

When Mr. H. O. Havemeyer's attention was called to these statements this afternoon, he said:

"Parts of most of words of truth in them. We have no intention of removing from Brooklyn or establishing a plant in Norfolk."

SAD FOR FRENCH BALL.

Serious Inspector Harley Will Keep Everything Prim-and-Frunklike.

The too liner, as they say in vaudeville, will be missing from the French ball to-night. Without it the French ball will be as gloomy as the catacombs in Egypt.

For Inspector Thompson is not to be there. The valiant defender of the fair, the rescuer of oppressed gay boys who have been swindled by waiters, will not appear in his Hawkeye disguise in his place serious Inspector Harley will reign as king, with about forty blue-coats and a lot of Central Office men.

"There will be no funny business," said Harley this afternoon.
